Welcome to the 2015-2016 Academic WorldQuest™!

This year, we host the 14th Annual Academic WorldQuest™, the flagship education program of the World Affairs Councils of America.

One of the greatest challenges facing our nation and our schools across the country is preparing our youth for the globally interconnected world of the 21st Century. America's ability to face the economic and security challenges of the 21st Century and seize new opportunities is dependent on an informed citizenry and a well-educated workforce. Academic WorldQuest™ is a unique opportunity to expose youth to the world outside our borders and prepare them for the challenges and the opportunities of the 21st Century.

Founded in 2003, Academic WorldQuest™ is a team game testing high school students' knowledge of international affairs. In the game, four-person teams compete by answering questions divided into ten unique and engaging thematic categories. The winner is the team with the most correct answers.

Structure of Program:

During the academic year preceding The Carlos and Malú Alvarez 2016 Academic WorldQuest National Competition in the spring, approximately 4,000 students participate in local AWQ competitions hosted by some 45 World Affairs Councils across the United States.

This information packet includes the AWQ Study Guide, which provides detailed resources on each of 10 question categories to help students and teachers to prepare for the competition. Questions for the competition are drawn from the resources in the AWQ Study Guide.

Winning teams are invited to represent their high school, city, and local World Affairs Council at The Carlos and Malú Alvarez Academic WorldQuest National Competition, held in the spring each year in our nation's capital, Washington, DC. This special weekend includes the competition as well as substantive programming designed to enhance the global education experience.

Common Core Standards

Academic WorldQuest contributes to the national Common Core State Standards Initiative by fostering reading comprehension skills for informational text.

Qualifying for Academic WorldQuest National Competition Rules and Regulations

All teams that compete in The Carlos and Malú Alvarez Academic WorldQuest National Competition must win a local AWQ competition sponsored by a member organization of the World Affairs Councils of America.

Teams may compete in only one (1) local competition in order to qualify to compete in the National Competition.

A team consists of four (4) Primary Teammates who are currently high school students (freshman – senior year). No more than four players per team will be able to compete in the National Competition.

Teams may designate Alternate Teammates to replace one or more of the four Primary Teammates in the case of sickness or other circumstances which would prevent a Primary Teammate from competing in the National Competition. Please note that local Councils may be unable to send Alternate Teammates to the National Competition.

On the day of the event (Saturday, April 23 2016), once The Carlos and Malú Alvarez Academic WorldQuest National Competition has officially started no substitutions of Alternate Teammates may be made.

Teams of fewer than four students are allowed to compete, but this is strongly discouraged.

If the winning team from a local competition is unable to compete in the National Competition and has no Alternate Teammates, the second place team may compete in its place.

The Carlos and Malú Alvarez 2016 Academic WorldQuest National Competition Rules and Regulations

How to Play

There are 10 rounds of 10 questions each. All of the questions are multiple-choice except for Current Events, which will feature fill-in-the-blank, true/false, and open-ended questions.

Teams have up to 45 seconds to answer each question.

Scoring

One (1) point is awarded for each correct answer. No penalty for incorrect answers or no answer.

The team with the most correct answers out of all 100 questions is declared AWQ Champion.

If, at the conclusion of the competition, there is a tie for 1st through 3rd place, tie-breaker rounds will be played.

Regulations

Teams are not allowed to consult with the audience, wireless devices, cell phones, other teams, books or written material at any point during the competition. Any team found by World Affairs Councils of America judges, staff, or volunteers to be violating this rule will forfeit that round and a penalty of 20 points will automatically be deducted from that team's score.

If a team believes another team is cheating, a player may alert a World Affairs Councils of America representative. However, if the other team is not found to be in violation of any rules, the accusing team will forfeit two (2) points.

A team consists of four (4) players. Player substitutions are not allowed. During the competition, a player can only use the bathroom during the break. If a player leaves at any other point during the rounds, he or she cannot return until after the break.

Parents, alternates, and other guests must remain "off the floor" in the reserved seating area, at all times.

If a team wishes to challenge an answer, one (1) team member may bring the challenge calmly and politely to the judges within the time period allotted after answers are announced. Teams are not allowed to discuss challenges with audience members. The decision of the head judge is final. If the challenge is unsuccessful, the team which brought it will forfeit one (1) point.

NATO

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is an intergovernmental military alliance based on the North Atlantic Treaty, signed on April 4, 1949. The organization constitutes a system of collective defense whereby its member states agree to mutual defense in response to an attack by any external party. Asia Matters for America

The fastest growing region in the world, Asia represents a key opportunity for the United States to maintain and strengthen its presence on the world stage. From educational exchange to security and trade, U.S. connections with Asia have grown in leaps and bounds over recent decades. As relationships at the highest levels of government have strengthened, so too have ties between individual U.S. states and Asia-Pacific countries. Today there is not a single U.S. state that has not in some way benefitted from its economic, security, and educational ties with Asia. Under its Asia Matters for America initiative, the East-West Center in Washington highlights how U.S. states and/or congressional districts interact with countries in the Asia-Pacific on a variety of levels, including politics and security, education and exchange, and trade and investment.

International Trade and Finance

Countries are increasingly eliminating their trade barriers and international trade now truly spans the globe. Products and services come from everywhere and go everywhere. This, as well as the interconnectedness of financial markets, makes countries very dependent on what happens in the world economy. Change is a constant in trade and finance, whether as seen in recent volatility of energy prices or longer-term trends such as China's rise on the global stage.

The Sultanate of Oman

Located on the southeastern tip of the Arabian Peninsula, Oman is a country with a rich history and culture. Its varied terrain includes steep mountain peaks, pristine beaches, vast deserts, and fertile croplands. Historically, the Sultanate has been a seafaring nation and overlooks three seas -- the Arab Gulf, the Gulf of Oman, and the Arabian Sea. Today, Oman is a modern monarchy led by Sultan Qaboos bin Said. The country serves as a model for economic development and inclusive progress.

Privacy in the Digital Age

Advances in computing technology, the Internet, and social media are dramatically shaping real-time communication and information-sharing. By improving access to information and facilitating global debate, these powerful technologies foster democratic participation. But the new tech of today’s networked society also has become increasingly vulnerable to electronic surveillance and interception. Such surveillance threatens individual rights – including rights to privacy and to freedom of expression and association – and inhibits the free functioning of a vibrant civil society.

Food Security

Planet Earth is coping with the strain of a population of 7 billion people. Challenges from agricultural practices, resource scarcity, wealth inequality, climate change, and international conflict affect food security. As the world’s population grows closer to 8 billion and beyond, the issue of food security becomes even more vital for countries to address.

Organization of American States

The Organization of American States is the world’s oldest regional organization, dating back to the First International Conference of American States, held in Washington, D.C., from October 1889 to April 1890. Today, the OAS brings together all 35 independent states of the Americas and constitutes the main political, juridical, and social governmental forum in the Hemisphere. In addition, it has granted permanent observer status to 69 states, as well as to the European Union (EU). The OAS uses a four-pronged approach to effectively implement its essential purposes, based on its main pillars: democracy, human rights, security, and development.
